

THE STORY OF GAME

Game's story begins as it does for many of our kids at our homes across Thailand. He lost his parents at a young age and spent time with extended family until circumstances meant the best place for him was at Baan Tharn Namchai. At the age of twelve he moved into BTN which offered him a safe and loving environment with access to health care and education. The bond that he formed with the director of the home Khun Rotjana was immediate and she quickly became the mother he had never known.

Game was dedicated to every task that was before him, his studies, work around BTN and the care for the younger children. He was to many of the younger kids the role model that were lacking. He completed his school studies and graduated from high school with a desire to continue his studies. As one of the first of the older kids to graduate we were only too happy to support him into University. Not only did he excel at his studies but he returned at every opportunity to support the work of those at BTN and remain in contact with the younger kids.

Game completed his University studies and graduated with Law Degree. We were all so incredibly proud of him and his strong desire to work within the home and community which had supported him. We offered him and he accepted the role as General Manager for Hands in Thailand and travelled across the country in support of our work. However his calling came to return to BTN as Khun Rotjana fought a battle with cancer that she would ultimately lose. Game returned to BTN and took the role as Director, succeeding Khun Rotjana, the mother he never had.

He returned to University on a part time basis amongst his busy work schedule and again excelled. He recently graduated with top marks having completed his MBA. He was so successful and impressed his professors so much that he has been offered a full scholarship to study his Phd in business. We can not be prouder of Game, the life he lives, the morals that are at his very core and the desire to serve others which is part of his DNA.

Game's story is very much a sliding door one. At the age of 12 when we was forced out of the home he was living in with family his life could have gone one of two ways. If not for the support of everyone at BTN and the extended Hands community we might not have as part of our team this outstanding leader and inspiration to all those who know him.
